

CLOVIS MAKSLOUD

December 17, 1926 - May 15, 2016

On behalf of his family and friends, it is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Dr. Clovis Maksoud.

In his early career, Dr. Maksoud developed his skills as a lawyer and journalist before becoming the Ambassador of the League of Arab States to the US and the United Nations. As the representative of his region's interests to the US and the world, he accepted one of the most challenging assignments an Arab could face. Since then he continued to support diplomatic efforts through his involvement in the Arab-American affairs and academics – primarily as a professor at American University and head of its Center for the Global South.
